

Table of Contents

Vincenzo Damiani and Florian Steger
Preface	7
I. Medicine and Drama
Matthew Chaldekas
Melancholy as a Technical Term and Literary Model in Sophocles' Trachiniae	13
Marina Galetaki
The Imagery of Erōs-engendered Dissonance in Euripides' Hippolytus: Labour and Menstruation	39
II. Medicine and Philosophy
Elizabeth Jelinek and Nickolas Pappas
A Gender Metaphor from Hippocratic Medicine in Plato's Timaeus	71
David Levy
Diagnosis, Incurability, and Techne in Plato's Gorgias	89
Fabian Neuwahl
Countless Illnesses, Countless Vices. Seneca's Appropriation of the Developmental Narrative of Medicine and Philosophy in his Letter 95	111

III. Medicine and Historiography

Gaius Stern

Iatrophobia and the 'Deceitful Doctor as a Traitor' Topos in Greece and Rome (750 BC–AD 100)	135
---	-----

IV. Medicine and Literary Language

Carlo Delle Donne

Metaphors they Lived by. Patients' Figurative Language in Ancient Greek Medical Works	165
--	-----

Oriane Demerliac

Nausea in Ancient Poetry: a generic marker	191
---	-----

Federica Fumante

To Aliment the Ailment: Medical Metaphors in Ancient Latin	221
---	-----

V. Medicine and Religion

Regina Radlbeck-Ossmann

Vulnerable Life, Threatening Illness, Longed-for Healing. Contexts of Jesus' Healing Action in the History of Medicine and Religion	247
--	-----

Abbreviations	283
---------------------	-----

Correspondence addresses of the Authors	285
---	-----